

Sample Question Bank – Fashion Designer

Q1. What is the first step in preparing a fashion design collection?

- A. Preparing a techpack
- B. Conducting research on fashion trends and target markets
- C. Creating production schedules
- D. Approving prototype garments

Answer: B. Conducting research on fashion trends and target markets

Q2. Why should a Fashion Designer review previous product ranges developed by the business?

- A. To calculate employee salaries
- B. To assess their relevance to current design requirements
- C. To prepare shipping documents
- D. To determine factory attendance

Answer: B. To assess their relevance to current design requirements

Q3. Which of the following should be identified before developing a design collection?

- A. Business processes, client goals, and quality standards
- B. Employee leave records
- C. Factory utility bills
- D. Packaging costs only

Answer: A. Business processes, client goals, and quality standards

Q4. Research on materials, designs, processes, and marketing materials should be conducted:

- A. After production starts
- B. According to the needs of the design
- C. Only when requested by suppliers
- D. After garment shipment

Answer: B. According to the needs of the design

Q5. While determining key criteria for a design brief, a Fashion Designer should identify:

- A. Office seating arrangements
- B. Design themes and style requirements
- C. Employee performance ratings
- D. Tax regulations only

Answer: B. Design themes and style requirements

Q6. Which factor is important while planning a design collection?

- A. Budget, cost points, and lead time constraints
- B. Factory paint colour
- C. Staff uniforms only
- D. Transport routes

Answer: A. Budget, cost points, and lead time constraints

Q7. Requirements for fabrics, materials, suppliers, and production processes are determined primarily to:

- A. Meet design and production objectives
- B. Increase electricity consumption
- C. Reduce communication with suppliers
- D. Delay production schedules

Answer: A. Meet design and production objectives

Q8. When should special requirements be confirmed with the client?

- A. After the collection is launched
- B. Before finalizing the design brief
- C. After shipment of garments
- D. During marketing campaigns

Answer: B. Before finalizing the design brief

Q9. Which of the following helps a Fashion Designer identify an appropriate theme for a collection?

- A. Market research and fashion forecasts
- B. Payroll records
- C. Inventory reports only
- D. Transport schedules

Answer: A. Market research and fashion forecasts

Q10. Which sequence best represents the process of preparing a design collection?

- A. Confirm client requirements → Research trends → Identify budget
- B. Research trends → Review previous designs → Identify client goals → Research materials → Determine design theme → Identify budget and lead time → Determine fabric requirements → Confirm client requirements
- C. Create prototype → Research materials → Review previous designs
- D. Determine budget → Create techpack → Conduct market research

Answer: B. Research trends → Review previous designs → Identify client goals → Research materials → Determine design theme → Identify budget and lead time → Determine fabric requirements → Confirm client requirements